The Fabulists

Winner of the inaugural Writers Week Book of the Year in 1995 and originally published by The Lilliput Press, The Fabulists traces the illicit and story-telling love affair of Tess and Mungo, two casualties of the austerity of the 1980s. 'A passionate, erotic, mature novel.' Ronan Sheehan, The Irish Press.

Paperback: 978-0-9927384-5-7; ePub: 978-0-9927384-4-0;
Kindle: 978-0-9927384-3-3/ASIN: B00M4YR0H6

The Water Star

Originally published by Picador. Set in a post-war London still recovering from the Blitz, The Water Star follows the intertwining lives of five characters, three of them Irish. 'The Water Star a pleasure to read... An intelligent, memorable, moving novel.' –Arminta Wallace, The Irish Times
Paperback: 978-0-9927384-7-1; ePub forthcoming Feb 2015;
Kindle: 978-0-9927384-6-4/ASIN: B00P181Q2W

The Fisher Child

Originally published by Picador. Dan and Kate are second generation Irish Londoners, and comfortably middle-class. Their world falls apart when their third child is black. Dan never quite succeeds in tracing a story which began in the Irish Rebellion of 1798 and the Caribbean island of Montserrat. 'This wise, tender novel.' Paul Magrs, TLS. 'A beautiful, evocative tale of love tested.' Sue Leonard, The Irish Examiner
Print and Kindle, forthcoming December 2014. ePub, 2015.
